SUPER RUGBY PACIFIC REVIEW

SEASON 2026

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Following a mixed season of performances for the NSW Waratahs on the field, this review will evaluate our output off the field, coming against some obvious challenges. The main focuses of this document will be across digital and media, marketing, attendance and membership.

Key numbers at a glance:

- 38K increase in digital following across the Super Rugby Pacific season
- 22% rise in membership numbers, with growth across the product base
- Top-two most-viewed matches on broadcast (Stan) this year in Australia

- 21% decrease in ticket sales for home games at Allianz Stadium year on year
- 19% drop in the number of media coverage articles
- 68% decrease in NPS score (net promoter score) due to negative results at home

NSW RUGBY WARATAHS

SEASON OVERVIEW

How we performed against goals and targets

	GOAL	TARGET	RESULT	COMMENTS
NPS	Increase NPS score by 6.4%	Increase NPS to +50 from +47 (2025)	NPS Score +15	2026 matchday NPS finished at +15 , below the +50 target and the 2025 result of +47, reflecting a season less consistent home performance. +41 in wins and -9 in losses, highlighting the strong influence of team performance recommended by fans experience.
Attendance	Increase average ticket sales by 13%	Increase average ticket sales to 7,250 from 6,364 (2025)	Average ticket sales 5,723	Attendance was impacted by ambitious targets, team performance and broader cost-of-living pressures. Despite this, we finished only 1k short of 2025 attendance, when the team had a 90% home win rate. On-field performance remains the biggest lever for future attendance growth.
	Increase average Waratah scans by 10%	Increase average Waratah scans to 12,143 from 11,038 (2025)	Average scans 10,122
	Increase total season scanned attendance by 13%	Increase total season scanned attendance to 105k from 98.4k	Total attendance 97,173
Digital, Content & Media	Increase media mentions by 5%	40.5k media mentions across the season	31.5k mentions, 19% down on 2025, 3% up on 2024	Key factors include reduction of journalists and media outlets (the Roar, no ABC coverage, less media at games), poor results on the field, push back from HPU on media schedules, Joseph-Aukuso Suaalii providing a bump in 2025.
	Increase video views on social channels by 10%	25M total season video views across social	+29.5M video views, 50% more than 2025	Some pieces of video content performed incredibly well across channels to take us up to a huge increase in 2026.
Memberships	Increase total membership number by 7.7%	Increase total membership number to 3,400 from 3,156 (2025)	Sold 3,863 memberships	Had a significant increase in Ticket Bundle memberships, which drove membership growth
	Increase revenue target by 1.07%	Increase membership revenue to $850K from $841K (2025)	$890k revenue	Did achieve great YoY revenue growth to achieve this revenue target, however did not hit budget target of $957k.
	Increase average full season show rate by member satisfaction	67.8% (2025)	69% show rare	First 3 matches averaged 75% but remaining matches were 62%-66%

What worked well

Integrated campaigns: themed rounds

Emotive content: debuts and milestones

Strong look and feel: image-led

Reacting to moments, eg. the haka, Triston Reilly no-try

Trying new things eg. Tah Man

Quick, engaging content

LEARNINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Key Learnings	Recommendations
Reactive, not proactive	We are often slow to news from High Performance such as new signings or contract extensions, because we are an afterthought and aren't front of mind.	Better comms with downstairs. Demand more of a seat at the table. Have a greater presence at HP meetings during the week. 'Fans first' strategy that they must abide by in 2027.
Content calendar	We occasionally miss key dates or events because we are not updating the calendar regularly enough.	Finding the best platform we'd like to use in the off-season and sticking to it. Updating regularly throughout the week so everyone is constantly aware of what is going out and when. Planned content that isn't off the cuff.
Player appearances	A lack of player appearances away from the field deprived of us of an additional content stream.	New players' agreement should establish more opportunities. Solving the current issues with HP and NSW Rugby.
Resource/ time	We can get squeezed for time during the week, while we are often working +80-hour weeks, particularly when travelling with the team.	Being more selective over what we choose to work on. Create more time for high-impact work. Bigger focus on this.
Storytelling	We sometimes don't effectively tell player stories as well as we could, which becomes more difficult with poor results on the field	Create plans, storyboards and briefings. Turn up armed with questions for interviewees that will produce the most meaningful content. Have content and pitches banked in advance of the season starting.
Media pitching	Struggled in the first half of the year to produce hard-hitting media coverage, with dwindling broadcast numbers (and poor results on the field).	(Hopefully) adding an intern or two to take care of day-to-day tasks will create more time for pitching meaningful stories.

WEBSITE PERFORMANCE

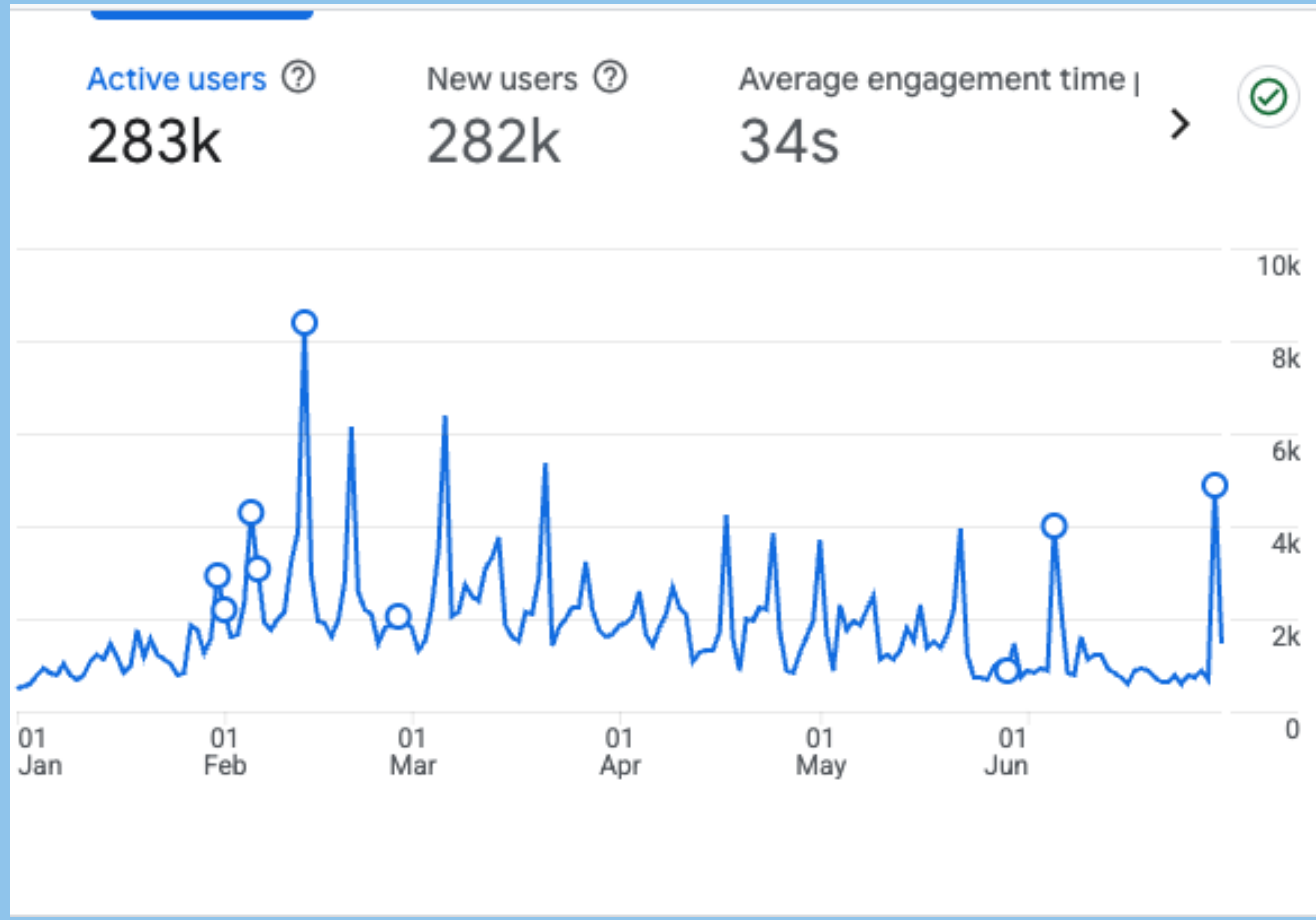

RISES IN BOTH ACTIVE AND NEW USERS

- The Waratahs website numbers improved in 2026, despite our strategy to place more emphasis on the growth of our social channels

- Our active users increased by 4% (283k in 2026 > 271k in 2025) while the number of new users went up by 6% (282k in 2026 > 265k in 2025) although our average engagement time did drop by 20 seconds

- Despite us being slow to receive communications from High Performance, we would always be quick to update our fans on items such as injury updates, driving traffic to our website by publishing statements there

- We believe we can set relatively lofty targets for 2027 for our website if we have further resource to regularly provide content

*Data taken from 1 January – 30 June 2026.

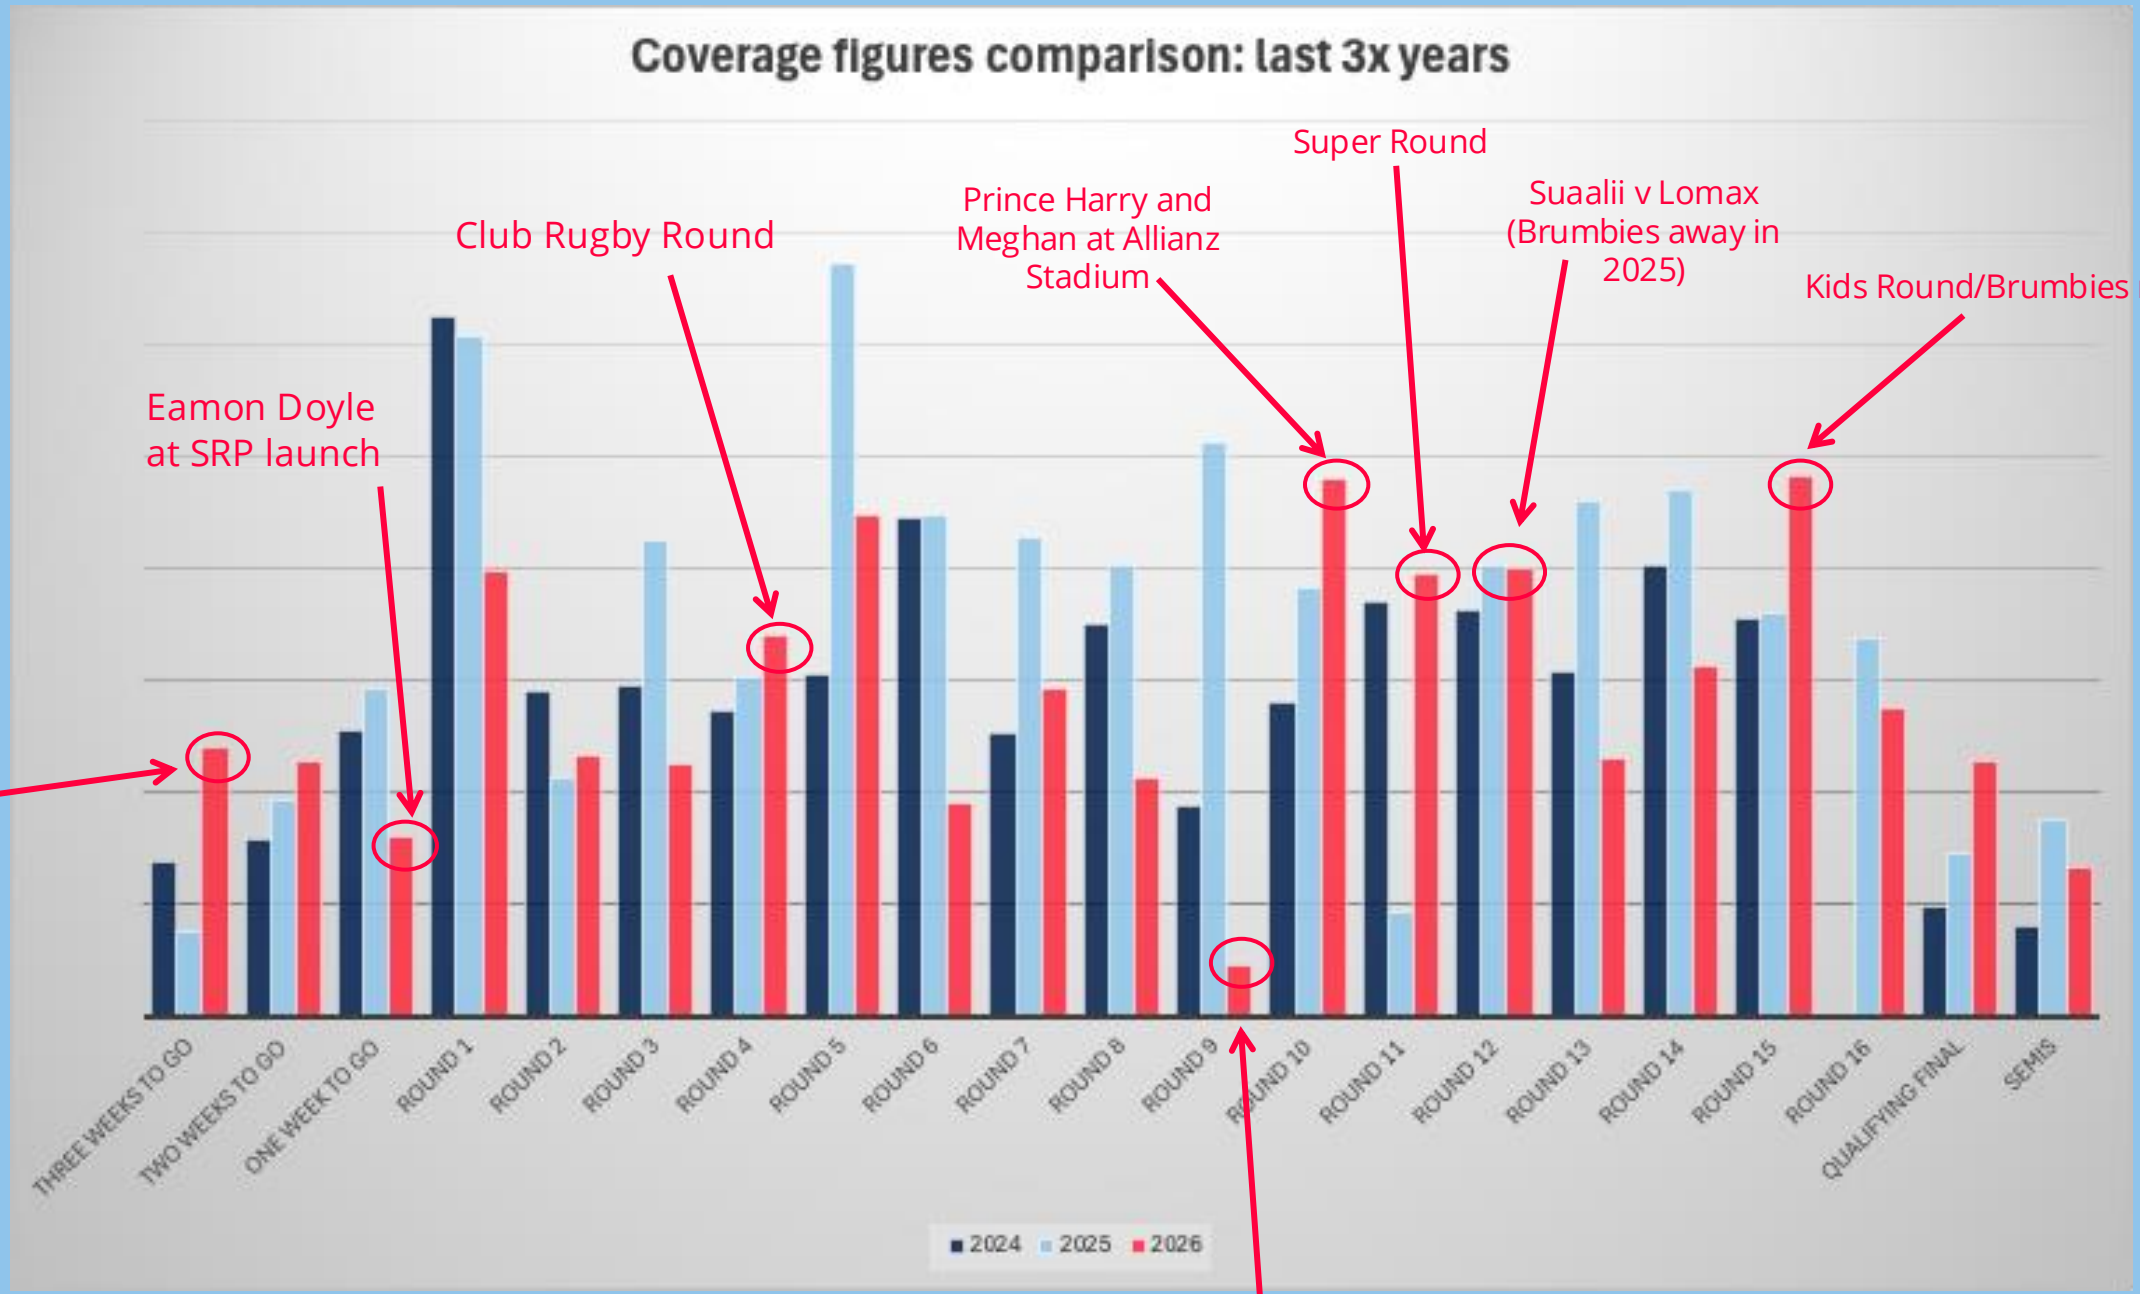

MEDIA MENTIONS

Poor start to season but strong back-end

- Total article numbers for 2026: 29,833 (from three weeks' out from start of Super Rugby (to semi-final stage).
- 19% down on 2025, 2% up on 2024.
- Key factors include reduction of journalists and media outlets (the Roar, no ABC coverage, less media at games), poor results on the field, push back from HPU on media schedules, Joseph-Aukuso Suaalii providing a bump in 2025.
- Much improved second half of the season, with huge numbers for our final three home games.

That's perfect timing, baby

Waratahs star Samu a father again

Jamie Pandaram

The bye came at the worst possible time for the Waratahs, but backrower Pete Samu hailed it as perfect after welcoming his fourth child seven hours before their previous match.

Saint Iosefo Petelo Samu arrived into the world at 3.9kg and 56cm just before midday on Friday, February 20, and he may be the youngest fan in the crowd at Allianz Stadium when NSW hosts the Hurricanes next Friday.

The Tahs have made a hot start to the Super Rugby season, recording two bonus-point wins before an untimely bye in round three that may halt their momentum.

But the week off was just what Samu and his wife Bex needed, with Saint joining older brother Grayson (five), and older sisters London (three) and Carter (one).

"Perfect timing, Thursday was our only training day this week, so it's been good to be home and spend that time with them," Samu told Code Sports.

"I wouldn't say it's a crazy household. I mean, it was crazy before him. Obviously you can't do much, he just eats and has a feed and then is asleep most of the time.

"Potentially he'll be at the game next Friday, depending how the weather is and all that."

Akin to Michael Jordan's famous "Flu Game", the Tahs nicknamed their second-round victory over Fijian Drua as the "Newborn Game" after Samu welcomed his son, then rushed to Allianz Stadium and performed inspirationally as the home side scored six tries to one.

The 34-year-old Wallabies forward tore up the Drua defence on a day he was first woken at 3am by Bex's screaming from contractions.

"I woke up because I heard her in the room, the night before I fell asleep with my son in his room and the next morning I heard her going through some contractions," Samu said.

"She started around 3 o'clock, and I was like, 'Oh no'. But she wanted let me sleep in to prep for the game.

"You get to that point where you want to get into the hospital because it's almost there, but her being the selfless person she is, she let me stay laying down.

"I got up at seven to get the kids to school and daycare, got to the hospital at around 10, and then he was out at 11.50am."

Samu paid tribute to his wife for her incredible strength.

"I can't even describe how women go through that, giving birth, the pain of labour," Samu said.

"It's a different type of strength, she definitely is a warrior.

"I'm lucky to have a partner who supports me and wants me to do well. She definitely plays a big, big part in getting my prep sorted."

However, Samu declared their family is now complete.

"We're done," Samu said.

"I think I was done at three, but it didn't feel like she was done. So we also wanted another boy just for our son. We were hoping for a boy this last one, and we got him."

The Samu household is busier than ever.

"Sometimes we forget that there is a fourth in the house," Samu said.

"They really enjoy having a new baby brother, loving it. They're all a bit rough with him at the moment, but they're really enjoying it."

While Samu has much to celebrate at home, he is not breaking out the champagne over the Tahs' undefeated start to the 2026 season.

"We've had two good wins, but we just can't fall in love with ourselves," Samu said. "It's still early in the season and we've got some tough games coming up."

He is the unlikely shining light in a millionaires' backline, but Sid Harvey is well prepared for the rollercoaster ride of professional rugby.

The 20-year-old has already experienced highs and lows in his brief career, from being overlooked for the Australian under-20s side, to a mixed stint in the Aussie Sevens squad, winning a colts grand final with Eastern Suburbs, and now starring in Super Rugby while the Waratahs struggle for consistency.

Narrabri-born Harvey could have been a cricketer – he famously got the wicket of Australian opener Sam Konstas in a junior rep match with his left-arm pace bowling – but once he made the choice to play rugby, has been all-in.

"I had a fair crack at cricket, and I wanted to have a proper run at rugby, I had to decide one or the other.

"Unfortunately I couldn't go the Ellyse Perry route and do both," Harvey said. "In my teen years, it was mostly just rugby during the winter and cricket during the summer, and from when I was about 16, I was doing a lot more cricket, and so that would take up most of the year with pre-season.

"And then I got to 17, I wanted to have a crack at the footy, and so I put cricket on the backburner for a bit, and the rugby started taking off in year 12, which was pretty nice.

"But I'll claim it, I got Sam Konstas out one game, so I'm still hanging on to that.

"I played the national champs in 2023 for NSW Country. He was on about 50 or 60, and he just didn't see the slow ball, he was trying to put me over my head."

Instead, it was Harvey knocking them for six when he finally put his full attention into rugby. In his debut season with the Eastern Suburbs colts side in 2024, Harvey broke the club record for most points in a season – an astonishing 337 points from 21 games including a starring role in their grand final victory.

He was selected in the Aussie Sevens team, making his debut last year, and was in and out of the squad before a highlight in the Hong Kong tournament's bronze medal match.

"I hadn't played all weekend, and then I got about three minutes in the Fiji game and scored the winning try," Harvey said.

"I came in straight into the Sevens after the under-19s Super Rugby comp, and then went to a camp, had three weeks, and then Dietrich Roach, who I was trying to learn off in my position, he did his knee. So I was thrown in straight away, I had three weeks, then we went to Dubai and Cape Town. And it was so cool, but I was fresh and I still had a lot to learn.

Tahs winger Sid Harvey tries to outrun the Crusaders' defence in Christchurch last month; and (below) Harvey was a promising junior cricketer before making the decision to commit to footy.

"But there was a fairly steep learning curve there, and you are put under the spotlight, which sucks in the moment, but I think it was really beneficial for me in the long run.

"There were a lot of tournaments where I'd be 13th man for four or five games, and then play the last game. It taught me a lot about just being a team man and really focusing on that, where I can't help the team playing footy, being really good with energy."

Harvey has brought that approach to the Waratahs in his first Super Rugby season. While NSW is struggling, having lost six of its 10 games, Harvey has been a standout in a backline featuring Wallabies stars Joseph-Aukuso Suaalii and Max Jorgensen.

"It is a bit weird, no, they make you feel right at home," Harvey said.

"They dumb everything down to footy at its simplest, and make it pretty easy, so I try not to think about it too much.

"It's more when I'm talking to my dad and mum, and they're fanboying.

"But they're good, they keep me down, and they're all a really good bunch of guys, so it makes it pretty easy."

Harvey's parents Denis and Carmel still live in Narrabri, 521km northwest of Sydney.

Carmel is a teacher, hence Harvey's decision to study science teaching at university.

But his immediate focus in on the showdown against another former Sevens star, Highlanders winger Caleb Tangitau, on Saturday afternoon in Dunedin.

It's a must-win game for the Tahs, who then travel to Fiji to face Drua, host the Brumbies, and travel to play the Western Force in their remaining games – all teams that are fighting for a finals place. Harvey, who is the sixth highest points scorer in the competition with 74, says the team conducted a brutally honest review after last weekend's dire loss to the Force.

"There's no sugar coating it, we're at a point in our season where we need to win if we want to keep playing and make finals footy," Harvey said.

"There's no easy way around it, we've put ourselves in this position, and it's on us to rectify it if we want to.

"There's been a really good vibe at training, we had a pretty tough review, as it always is after games like that.

"The boys, like all season, have been really connected still, and put the work in this week, and we'll see what happens, hopefully we can get a result back."

Crichton coup but Waratahs will need playmaker depth

Jamie Pandaram

All eyes will be on NRL superstar Angus Crichton in 2027, with the NSW State of Origin backrower joining the Waratahs for next season in a bid to play in the World Cup.

But Crichton isn't the only addition to the squad, with Brumbies and Wallabies flanker Luke Reimer joining the team next year.

That is set to see Charlie Gamble take up a deal in Japan.

Meanwhile, Wallabies prop Angus Bell, who took up a sabbatical this year with Irish club Ulster, will return to bolster NSW's pack.

Playmaking is the major concern for NSW, with their three recognised five-eighths, Jack Debreczeni, Lawson Creighton and Jack Bowen all off contract.

The Tahs are understood to have signed Max Burey from the Force, and he could be used as a playmaker, but they'll need depth in the key position.

Superstar Joseph-Aukuso Suaalii has a two-year extension option in his favour. If he takes it up, he'll be at the Tahs until the end of 2029. With Max Jorgensen signed until 2031 and Sid Harvey until 2028, the outside back stocks are strong.

Crichton, who finishes up with NRL club Sydney Roosters after this season, has a second-year option to extend to 2028.

Crichton's impending arrival is set to see Joey Walton sign a deal in France.

BROADCAST

SEASON 2026.

BROADCAST

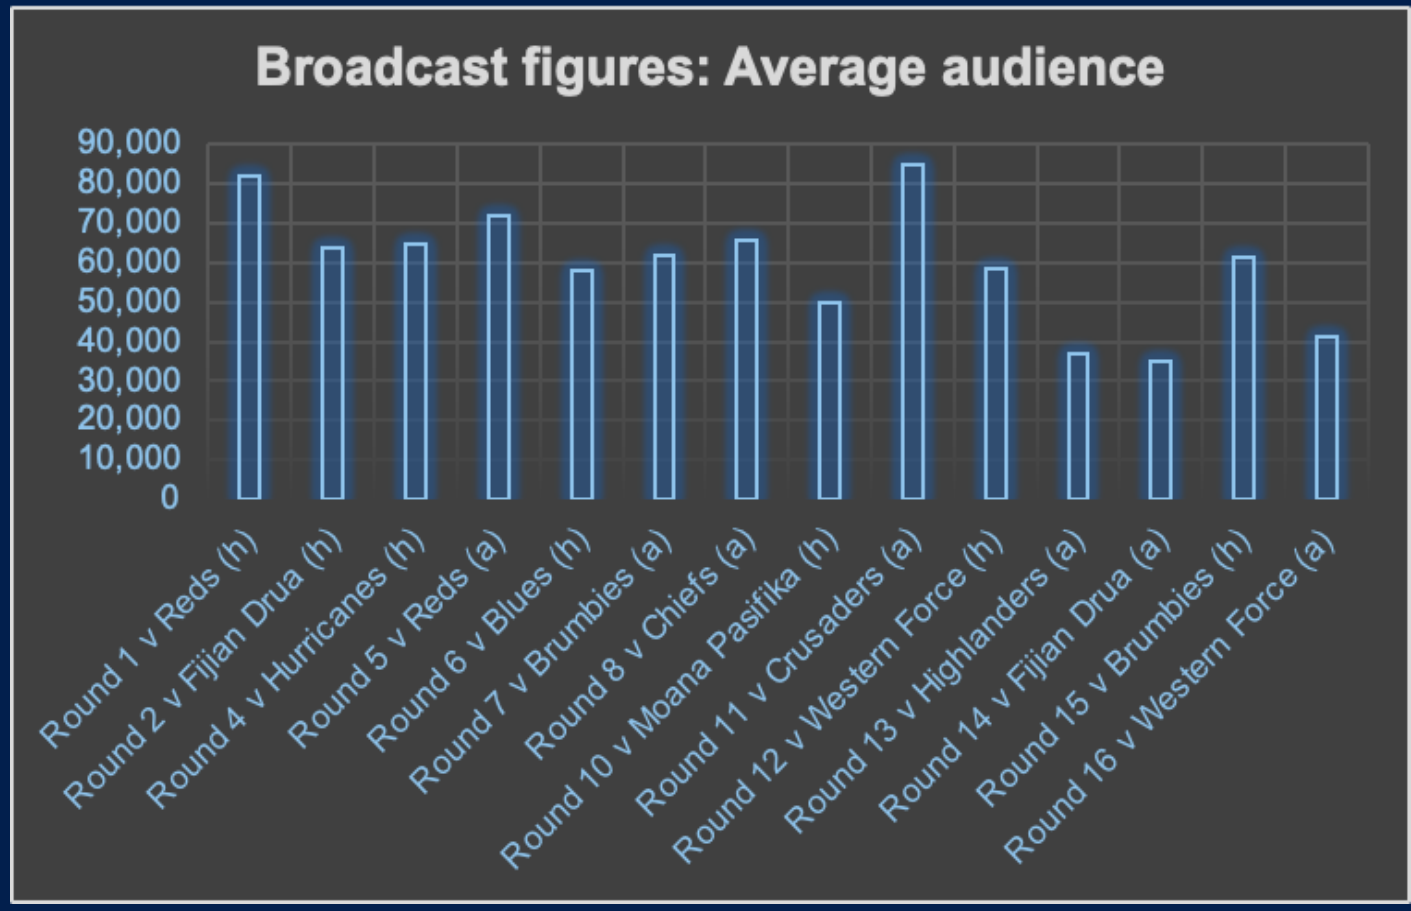

AVERAGE AUDIENCE

- The Waratahs had an average audience of +80,000 on two occasions in 2026 – away against the Crusaders in Super Round (84,859) and v the Reds in Round 1 at home (81,884).

- In general, our viewing figures trended downwards as we faded out of contention for a top-six berth.

- In terms of home and away comparisons, our average audience when playing at Allianz Stadium was 62,511, while our average away was 56,714.

- Our lowest average audiences were both away from home and not in Australia, as we seemingly had lost hope of making finals, against the Highlanders in Round 13 (36,792) and the Fijian Drua in Round 14 (35,029).

BROADCAST

Working with Stan

- We worked closely with Stan across the Super Rugby season, offering as many opportunities for the principal broadcaster as possible.

- This included pitching in stories for features, such as Jack and Diane Debreczeni for Club Rugby Round (pictured) and inviting them to photo/media opportunities. They did live crosses back to Rugby Heaven with Joseph-Aukuso Suaalii/Zac Lomax and Max Jorgensen/Tom Wright.

- We also worked with them on the headshots drawn by Bear Cottage for Kids Round, which were not only used across their broadcast, but also in the stadium and on our digital channels.

MARKETING & PROMOTION

Increased investment in targeted media, audience expansion, creative development and strategic partnerships to drive reach, awareness and conversion.

- Increased ad spend to improve reach and consistency.
- Expanded targeting beyond rugby strongholds, including lookalikes and casual fan segments.
- Used opposition audiences, Meta accounts and creative to drive match purchase.
- Invested in stronger graphics, video and fixture-specific creative.
- Built audience-specific activity, including Pasifika targeting and Bankstown flyer distribution.
- Partnered with Nova across precinct activations, spots and dots, live reads and organic social.

CREATIVES

The strongest performing creatives demonstrated that moving beyond H2H graphics to an always-on and platform-first approach with cultural relevance can drive stronger engagement and reach.

META

AWARENESS

Recommend that TOFU activity runs season long, with stronger production value, with round by round statics in total being 20-40% more expensive from a CPM perspective.

Breaking free from h2h statics also produced stronger assets from a reach perspective, with a connection to real-world hooks. The strongest CTR was achieved on their heritage throwback assets (6.81% CTR), similarly to the Duke and Duchess of Sussex asset (2.48% CTR).

CLICKS

Break up standard h2h assets with player milestones, new jersey/round shoutouts or different moments from the season, with no outstanding engagement performance shown in round by round creative

Continue to work with away clubs to run message for expats in the area, with these generating engagement and conversions at scale

Alternate price and story led messaging, with both having CTR and CPM strengths

VIDEO

More varied, fit for social video needs testing. Longer formats, boosting organic posts and different non-fixture based hooks. All video being 6s h2h limits testing and insights.

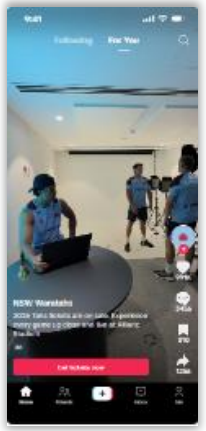

CONVERSIONS

Statics converted at a $21.28 CPA, with Video Converting at a $20.71 (no noticeable difference). Recommend placing more effort into Static/Message diversification rather than more difficult to produce video, saving this for larger fixtures.

Across all clubs, CPA got worse as the season went on and Australian clubs failed to perform and hype died down. Recommend apportioning a set amount of budget based on club performance, with a focus on starting the season strong.

TIKTOK

6.23% hook rate | $4.46 CPM

21 purchases | $41.38 CPA

PAID MEDIA – PARTNERSHIP

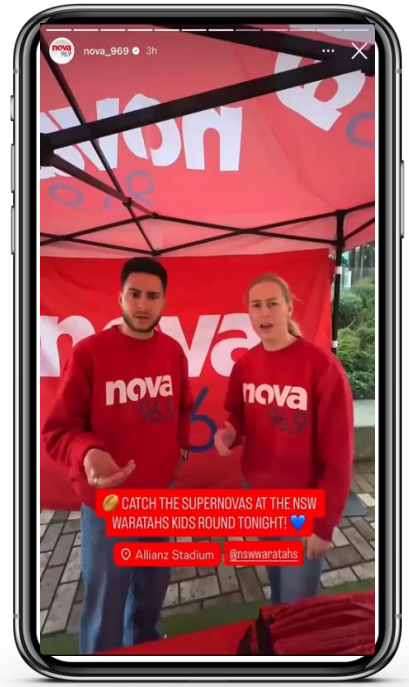

The Nova partnership delivered exposure across radio spots, live reads, social inclusion and game day Fan Zone activation during Kids Round, driving strong brand awareness through Nova's platforms while also creating meaningful fan engagement through interactive on-ground experiences.

FAN ENGAGEMENT

Enhanced the match-day and in-season experience through new fan activations, stronger pre-game traditions, and improved supporter engagement opportunities.

- Fan Zone: added flags, archway, What's On content and precinct map posts.
- Waratah Walk: established as a stronger pre-game ritual.
- KOMO activations: delivered half-time prizes and Inner Circle experiences.
- Clappers: did not have the intended impact and will be reviewed.
- Fan Day: shifted from open training to a more structured fan event.
- Woollahra Hotel: built as the pre and post-game pub, including Super Round Watch Party.

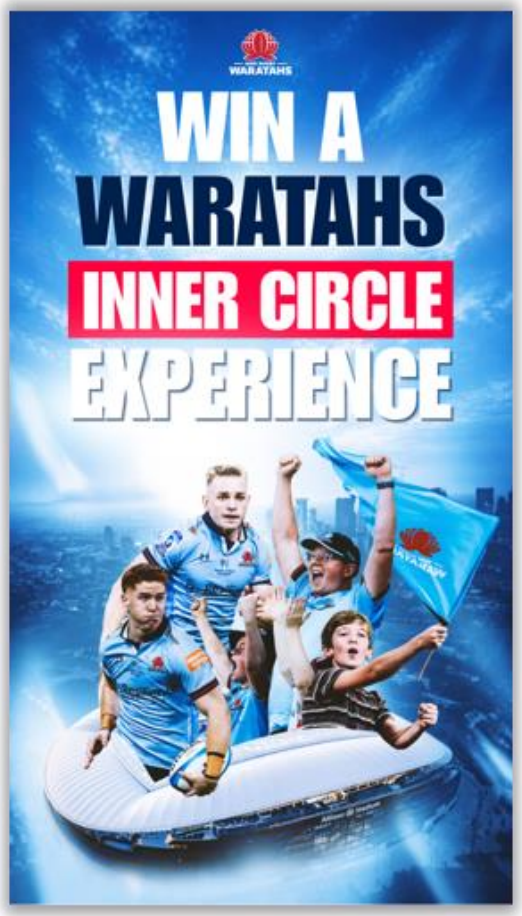

DATA ACQUISITION

Generated 640 new subscribers through targeted fan engagement activity

- UNSW O-Week: lifted preseason awareness through UNSW partnership activations, adding 112 subscribers.
- KOMO: introduced from Round 4 and delivered five fan engagement competitions, adding 499 subscribers.
- Fan Day: used Spin to Win to capture a further 30 subscribers.
- Continue the first-party data push as RA overhauls its broader data offering, platforms and fan growth programs.

LEARNINGS & OPPORTUNITIES

Focus areas for 2027

- Commence campaign planning as soon as fixtures are released, with a clearer game-by-game plan across content, ticketing, membership, fan engagement and partners.
- Strengthen content and targeting, with greater video volume, improved creative variety and sharper use of opposition audiences, creative assets and Meta accounts.
- Bring fan engagement planning forward, including earlier Inner Circle experiences and stronger promotional content to support acquisition.
- Confirm Fan Day locations and dates earlier, aligned to player lunch schedules, to allow a longer promotional window and improved fan experience.
- Develop platform-first creatives that is culturally relevant, with an always-on content approach that extends beyond match-specific messaging.
- Improve half-time entertainment by making activations easier for fans to participate in-stadium, generate content and talkability.
- Increase player visibility. The CBA should assist, but current access levels are not sufficient to grow fans, members and commercial value.
- Continue improving workflow between RA and Waratahs roles, with clearer role ownership, faster decision-making and stronger coordination.
- If Friday night games continue, focus marketing activity on audiences more likely to attend, rather than relying too heavily on families and junior rugby.
- Strengthen the link between acquisition, match-day experience and retention, so strong initiatives convert into longer-term member and fan growth.

SALES AND MEMBER ATTENDANCE

- In 2026, Waratahs experienced strong year-on-year membership sales growth, with large increases in Ticket Bundle packages.
- There was a strong correlation between Member attendance and team sentiment. Our full-season member show rate dropped after big loss to Hurricanes.
- Brumbies had lots of ticket bundle members redeem tickets as were sent a number of reminders to use the tickets for the final home match or lose them.
- We sent out Member Match Day Guides to members on the Wednesday leading into each home match, as well as regular reminders to Ticket Bundle Members on how to claim tickets.

MEMBERSHIP

WHAT WORKED

- Early on-sale helped build momentum
  July launch, Lions timing, draw release and September auto-renewals put us ahead early
- January–March sales period was strong
  Need to plan earlier for the 2027 SRP lead-in
- Ticket bundles drove demand
  Popular with new buyers, including match-day purchases

2027 OPPORTUNITIES / RFIS

- Fix bundle redemption experience
  Popular product, but negative member feedback on the redemption process
- Test simpler products
  Opportunity for 3-match GA with no redemption required, plus draw-led products
- Use events to drive retention
  Fan Day worked well. Opportunity for member-only events before season launch.

2026 MEMBER SURVEY

At the end of the regular season, we sent an email to Waratahs members to get feedback on their experience and what to improve on for next season

NPS Score + 21
49% (9-10) - 28% (0-6)

Members noted an improvement in communications from the club

Members want more Saturday games, as Friday night is a more challenging timeslot

Team performance main cause for why some members intend not to renew for 2027

Life Members want access to the Allianz Stadium Members Area at the same time as Stadium Members

Ticket bundle members want a smoother redemption process. First season with Ticketmaster.

Factors when renewing:
- Team performance
- Membership price
- Match schedule/how many games can attend

Future m'ship selling points:
- Wallabies & Finals pre-sale
- Merchandise discounts
- Bring-a-friend passes

LEARNINGS

SEASON 2026.

FINAL LEARNINGS

HOW DO WE MAKE 2027 BETTER THAN EVER BEFORE

1. This review should directly inform the 2027 strategy and KPIs: The Waratahs should improve documenting what things worked well and what didn't, while also streamlining all processes.

2. Strongest outcomes occurred in 2026 from alignment and collaboration (eg. Themed Rounds): We achieved our best results when we had an integrated plan for both Club Rugby Round and Kids Round.

3. Be bold in 2027 – anything but boring: We've learnt that we can't solely focus on rugby to sell tickets to games and reach a wider audience. We have to try new things in the lead up to games and in stadium.

4. New membership offerings: We will look to introduce a new membership tier for 2027 in the shape of the Waratahs SocialClub – a new, flexible entry-level membership tier to bring the 18-35-year-old demographic to Allianz Stadium, with the ability to selected which games to go to and additional perks along the way
